Omega Leads!

Once more Phi Rho Sigma has manifested its interest in the furtherance of scholastic standards and cultural considerations in Medical School. As a result of the interested efforts of Gwyn A. Parry, Omega, there has recently been established at Ohio State Medical College a Medical Council, a body of students whose function will be to assist the Dean and the faculty, to act as intermediary between the student body and the faculty, and to sponsor a program directed toward the enhancement of the cultural aspects within the medical school. The members of this body comprise two Freshmen, three Sophomores, four Juniors and four Seniors. Omega has four representatives in this body: Gwyn Parry, President of Council (and Medical College representative to the Student Senate of Ohio State University, with which latter body the Medical Council co-operates and by which it is recognized), Don Printz, Senior member, Ted Allenbach, Junior member, and Rex Wilson, Freshman member. In addition to this student representation, Omega has two representatives among the faculty advisory members of the council of which there are four, one from each class year. They are Dr. Rollo C. Baker, Professor of Anatomy, and Dr. G. I. Nelson, Asst. Prof. of Medicine, senior class advisor. Membership in this council is attained through appointment by the dean, and is held until graduation. It is hoped and expected that this body will prove of ever increasing usefulness to both the faculty and the student body.

WRITE FOR CASH

It will be to the credit of yourself (if you are an undergraduate) and your fraternity, and incidentally restore the jingle to your pocket, if you will write an essay for THE AMERICAN SCHOLAR, the quarterly journal published by Phi Beta Kappa for all interested in intellectual life.

The essay should consist of about 2000 words on any subject of general interest to educated readers. It should be scholarly but not technical, and must be well written. All essays accepted by the Editorial Board of THE AMERICAN SCHOLAR will be printed as main articles with the name of the author's college and fraternity indicated, and an honorarium of $25 will be paid the author. This journal will have the privilege of reprinting any such article and of publishing any essay which THE AMERICAN SCHOLAR finds unsuited to its use. Your essay should reach the editor of THE AMERICAN SCHOLAR, 145 West 55th Street, New York, N. Y., by the end of March.

The Men of 1932

THIS issue of the Journal carries the biographical data on the men of 1932. Some say that such a number does not make interesting reading but all are agreed that it is necessary to run the material for historical reasons. Now, as a matter of fact, it is the most revealing story that is or could be told about Phi Rho Sigma. It shows just what the members of each chapter have been doing for the last four years and the quality of their scholarship and their individual importance to their own school. Finally, it tells exactly what kind of physicians 98% of them are going to be. If you know the school, the work of the man and the appraisal of it by his peers and then can see what kind of a hospital he selected for his internship, his career is an open book and cannot be concealed. So to those who are interested in development of Phi Rho Sigma this is by far the most important and most informative.

DR. WILLIAM V. MULLIN, M. '08, the well known Otolaryngologist of the Cleveland Clinic, Cleveland, Ohio.

Indianapolis Founders Day

Under the chairmanship of Dr. Gordon Bateman, II, forty-four of Indianapolis Chapter of Chapter International of Phi Rho Sigma seventeen active members of II Chapter attended the Founder's banquet held at the Columbia Club on the evening of December 7. Dr. F. S. Crockett, II, '03, president of the Indiana State Medical Association was the guest of honor for this occasion. Among the speakers were Herman G. Morgan, Stephen Johnson, Victor Keene, George W. Bowman, William S. Tomlin, and E. Vernon Hahn. This party will stand as a milestone in the fraternity memory of each man who attended.

In Memoriam Dr. Billings

His place is empty there beside
The Chairman where he wrought,
One of Valmora's founders, guide
And friend, whose very presence brought Us confidence, good cheer, and pride.

Vacant his chair, but still we feel
His big warm influence is real.
Broad is the space his shoulders span,
Big is his fist, his heart and head
Combine to make in height and spread,
Muscle and mind, a wondrous man.

A dominant in leadership,
His thought a steed, his will a whip
Rough shod he rides the hnstiles down,
Down, down 'neath fighting eye and frown
Who menace the cause he loves. See
Frank Billings, master builder, he Would not fear; he could not shirk.

Courage, Enthusiasm, Work—
This was the law of life to one
Who finished what he had begun.
Who four score years, almost, the game
Had played. His record big in fame.

Moulder of doctors. Organizer,
Skilled in the art of finding way,
A councillor and wise adviser.
In Civics, Medicine, in high
Endeavors manifold, his roll
Was the part of a noble soul.

Zetans in Pathology

The first Pathologist to appear on the chapter roll of Zeta Chapter was Downey L. Harris, now of St. Louis, whose work on Rabies is well known.

CHARLES WEBSTER GOULD, Z '01, taught pathology and bacteriology in the St. Louis Medical School for many years and later in the Atlanta College of Medicine where he devoted more and more time to Clinical Pathology.

The first recognition and description of Pellagra in the United States was given by George Harris Searcy, Z '01. This was an outstanding contribution. John William Trask of the same year, has contributed much to the technical side of collecting vital statistics in his career in the U. S. Public Health Service.

THOMAS B. VICTOR KEENE Z '02, who contributed so much to the expansion of Phi Rho Sigma in the first decade of this century, was the organizer and first director of Indiana State Health Laboratory.

SAMUEL R. HAYTHORN, Z '04, has had a meritorious career in Pathology and for years has been the outstanding Pathologist in western Pennsylvania.

Another outstanding figure in the field of the sister subject of Bacteriology is EARL BALDWIN MCKINLEY, Z '88, now dean of Georgetown University School of Medicine and formerly director of School of Tropical Medicine at San Juan, Porto Rico.

The career of WALTER M. SIMPSON of Dayton, Ohio, president of the American Society of Pathology, is well known to all by his work on Tularemia. He is now working night and day with induced fever by means of low wave broadcasting machine. When Frater Simpson resigned as assistant professor of Pathology at the University of Michigan, CARL H. FORTUNE entered the department, where he remained for three years and then entered the field of internal medicine as Instructor in the Department of Internal Medicine at the University of Michigan.

JOHN C. BUGHER, Z '29, became an instructor in Pathology upon his graduation and is now working upon the problem of the Measurement of Ionized Calcium Equilibria.

Brotherhood takes time to ripen. It needs a background of experiences, humorous, wearisome, or even tragic events shared together, a certain tract of memory shared in common. It needs interchange of books, meals, discovery of one another's whims, with mutual friends, to gain a proper perspective.

And we add, it means learning to give and to take, learning to respect another's viewpoint, opinions and wishes, being good sportsmen, tolerant because we have glimpsed the biggest things. And to a large extent does it not mean learning to forget all about one's precious self, cherished opinions and prejudices, in thinking a little more broadly about the other person?

—Magazine of Sigma Chi.

Colorado Changes in Faculty involve the following members of our fraternity: Richard W. Whitehead, Associate Grand Councillor of Phi Rho Sigma, becomes acting head of the department of pharmacology to relieve the dean of departmental position. Edward Delehanty becomes professor of neurology and head of the department. Charles A. Rymer becomes assistant professor of psychiatry.

Southern Illinois Medical Meeting was addressed on November 4 by Charles H. Neilson, P., of St. Louis on diseases of the thyroid.

Dr. Houghton, Dean of Iowa since 1928, has been made Associate Dean of the Division of Biological Sciences and director of the university clinics. He succeeds Franklin C. McLean, P '10, who will become a professor of physiology in accordance with his desire to return to research.

The seventh annual clinic of the Highland Park Physicians Club of Michigan, Clifford Grulee, A '03, professor of pediatrics in university of Chicago and William V. Mullin, M '08, of the Cleveland Clinic were both on the program.

Nebraska—At a joint meeting of the 11th and 12th districts in Scottsbluff on October 12, Dr. Adolph Sachs, H '07, professor of medicine at Creighton, spoke. Dr. Albert Tyler, H '07, professor of roentgenology in Creighton University, described a new technique for electrocoagulation before the Omaha-Douglass County Society on November 9.

Arthur C. Moran, A-Phi, Philadelphia, gave an address on Public Health Consciousness at Clearfield on October 23.

South Texas Graduate Assembly held this year in Houston had among its speakers Robert B. Osgood, N, who conducted clinics on arthritis and spoke on the treatment of fractures.

Vol. XXIX Jan.-Feb., 1933 Nos. 4 & 5

THIS journal is published by the Fraternity with the hope that it will be read by every living member and in an attempt to interpret the life of the medical student and the work of the Fraternity to the individual alumnus.

PHI RHO SIGMA has always had a serious reason for its existence, founded as an attempt on the part of rather lonesome medical students of the early nineties to establish contact in a social way with their teachers, it has never been the useless thing that many an observer has regarded Collegiate Greek Letter Societies. Students of Medicine and especially members of our Fraternity have always been too busy to devote much time to the more elaborate social life with its increasingly elaborate dances and banquets, to spend much time putting pledges through their paces, or to engaging in the absorbing battles of campus politics.

In these days it has become necessary to take stock and evaluate all of our expenditures. Every chapter that is following the principles of Phi Rho Sigma and the suggestions of the Grand Chapter is the most valuable experience in the life of each of its members. These congenial brotherly groups of selected medical students trying to become students of medicine are an inspiration which will go farther towards making a success of a life devoted to medicine than anything else can possibly do except the contact with a master.

Jonathan Forman, Ω.

PREMEDIC pledging, so-called, is bound to be outlawed. This was practically agreed to by all delegates at the last Inter-Medical Fraternity Conference in Chicago. This does not mean that anyone is not privileged to speak to anyone at any time about the advantages of his own fraternity and urge him to join it. No legislation prohibiting that could ever be enforced. It does mean that pins will not be placed upon a man until after he has been accepted for enrollment in the freshman medical class. Obviously this does not affect chapters in Canadian schools as medical fraternities are in direct competition with literary Greek letter societies. If perchance the pin of some fraternity is worn by a premedic before the agreed upon date, i. e., the week before the opening of school, such pin will not be looked upon by any other fraternity as anything but an unlawful practice on the part of the group so placing a pin and therefore not binding upon the man who wears it. He will be rushed and pledged by any group who so desires. This agreement when finally entered into will do away with the greater evils involved. It is not intended as we understand it to stop in any way the desire of any chapter to make friend with any premedic student or to interest him in their fraternity. It will break up the practice of three hundred or more men on a university campus wearing pledge pins to an organization to which at least half of them will never become eligible to belong. The outlawing of premedic pledging as outlined has the complete and unanimous support of the officers of the Grand Chapter of Phi Rho Sigma and judging by the discussion on the floor of the Atlanta Convention will have the complete approval of its next conclave.

JONATHAN FORMAN, Ω.

CHAPTERS, which cannot maintain a house because of the prohibitive value of real estate or because of the existence of school dormitories, often acquire a distinctly local attitude and see no reason for a chapter of an international medical fraternity. This point of view that fraternities exist to maintain homes for students is not sound. It is only one of its minor services where the need exists. Greek Letter Societies began in dormitories and can live a useful life there.

The value of belonging to an International Brotherhood of Physicians with members distributed from Halifax to San Diego from Winnipeg to Charleston is overlooked. The place that Phi Rho Sigma is taking in modern education is forgotten. The challenge is to become fraternity conscious and make your chapter worth more than it costs.

IN the days of Socrates, there lived two friends, both friends of Socrates, Simmias and Cebes. Simmias was from Thebes. Presumably Cebes was an Athenian. These men were independent thinkers, not servile to authority of books or men, but only to reason after examination of the facts.

They would have made excellent students of medicine in this age. Simmias, we are told, was "fonder of argument than any man living" and Cebes was said to be "the most incredulous of human beings" these two characteristics are in many ways similar; are important for success in medicine, the contact of wits in argument, the exchange of thoughts with alert minds, and the questioning of each concept before acceptance are potent generators of wisdom that "one time coin for which all things ought to exchange and in company with this, is anything truly bought and sold."*

For a doctor of medicine not to be as Cebes, incredulous and questioning of everything, is to place himself by that token with those physicians who Dejerim complained "see only what they are shown".

◆ Medical Economics ◆

THERE are a multitude of changes, which bid fair to take place within our time. As these changes come about and we are compelled to adjust ourselves to new circumstances many hard lessons will be driven home upon us. The first lesson which this depression has taught us is that whatever has been bought must be paid for. Young physicians will not any more try to lift themselves into prosperity by buying themselves into debt for homes, automobiles, or even for offices out-of-line with their practice and its return.

A New plan is being sponsored by the California State Medical Society to solve the problem of the cost of medical care for persons of limited means. This offers cooperative insurance by persons of moderate means to pay both hospitals and physicians through cooperation. Persons entitled to this service can get it by paying a fixed annual or semi-annual premium. They may choose their hospital from those cooperating with the plans and any physician who is in good standing with his local medical society. The physician is paid per unit of service given and so is the hospital.

Here lies a real solution. It does away with the excessive costs of the many schemes of private insurance now entering the field. It overcomes all of the objections that are inherent in state medicine. "Such a plan preserves inviolate the relation of physician and patient and distributes the cost of illness as efficiently as any insurance and since better fees are paid to the physician, although the cost to the patient is less, better service will be received."

SINCE the above was written, the minority report of the committee on the cost of medical care has appeared and has voiced about the same idea. Every member of the fraternity should get for himself at the earliest possible moment a copy of the reports of this committee and study them closely and without prejudice. Then, after he has weighed all of the evidence and has made up his mind, he should jump in and help to bring about the reforms which he has decided are necessary.

THE gross income should be three times the overhead in a full practice. Overhead should cover all expenses and full allowance for depreciation as well as interest on the medical part of the physician's education. A physician will have to be both busy and frugal to get it all from one-third of his income. The average man has 1200 productive office hours each year. The fee must therefore take into consideration the time spent and its value to the patient and its value to the physician; its ease or difficulty of performance; its actual value to the health of the patient, the class of the patient, his general standing in the community and his financial capacity.

THERE should be a copy of the publications of the "Committee on the Costs of Medical Care" on the shelves of every Chapter Library. Their report consists of a series of monographs on the relation of the medical profession to the public, and it is a pity that at this time not all of these intended studies have appeared; for they epitomize the results of a long series of medico-economic studies which have been made by the staff members and have received much favorable comment from the lay press because of the new perspective of the socio-medical problem which they treat. There is still a lot of loose thinking along this line of study, and for this reason every undergraduate should scrutinize these reports of the committee for there is no doubt that in the future they will largely determine the course which medico-economic thought and practice will take and the reactions of the general public to these views.

It is very important for this reason, that an abstract of the work of the "Committee on the Cost of Medical Care" has recently been prepared both for professional and non-professional use. The report of the majority of the committee incorporated in the abstract has received wide publicity by being featured as a front-page-news item, while the report of the minority, which was approved by the American Medical Association, was hardly considered by the press in this country. The inhospitable reception of the report approved by the American Medical Association clearly proves that the "big minds" are playing for public recognition, and it is their purpose to subjugate the medical profession and make it amenable to the dictates of "big business." This would probably be some form of "contract practice" which, in the long run, would be as disastrous to the real welfare of the public as distasteful to the medical profession. It is, therefore, a very urgent and momentous task for the young practitioner and student to grapple with this medico-economic situation and to see what solution can be reached. For such an active interest in the problem no material could be of greater value than these twenty-six monographs; they are indeed a veritable source-book for this question. No doubt further studies should be made with special reference to the question what would become of the medical profession of it should be fully standardized and mechanized. Despite the unfavorable majority report, the facts suggested by some of these monographs should receive special attention and serious consideration from the young men who remember what has been accomplished by individual practitioners in the advancement of medicine during the last two decades.

To the young man about to embark upon a medical career, the monograph on "Medical Facilities in the United States" is of special interest. It gives the accurate figures as to distribution of practicing physicians in our population, percentage of men in specialties, and the proportion holding hospital appointments. It also gives the relation of the governmental agencies and private health organizations to the profession at large, and presents a very careful analysis of this situation.

Changing economic conditions have made medical practice, as well as business ventures, highly hazardous enterprises. Hence the cost of medical care has assumed interest for the public as well as the doctor. The doctor has invested long years of study and the best years of his life in the interest of humanity; on the other hand, it is the layman who has to foot the bills and make this adventure possible.

These brochures may be obtained from the University of Chicago Press, or by writing directly to the "Committee on Cost of Medical Care," 910 Seventh St. N. W., Washington, D. C.

Frazer George L. King, Jr., of Alliance, Ohio, feels that our recent editorial on the dissipation of professional abilities by physicians through carrying the responsibility for certain civic organizations is a bit too strong. He writes:

"It has always seemed to me that we have a responsibility to our communities beyond the responsibility of being doctors, and I can not help but feel that if physicians were to follow strictly the sense of your editorial, they would form a narrow point of view and that the communities in which they live would be greatly the losers. If physicians refuse to serve in these various positions the same objections may be raised by members of the other professions and business men in the community, leaving many worthy projects without leadership.

No one is more opposed than I to physicians neglecting their practice for all kinds of activities, but I feel that your editorial gives students the wrong impression as they approach the practice of medicine."

CHAPTER MANAGEMENT

A Chapter is as strong as its members. We believe in, and maintain rushing throughout the school year. Zeta pledges medical and literary students from time to time during the year, and the spring rushing campaign is as intensive as the fall rushing period. In this way a large pledge class is assured, and a Chapter needs a full Chapter house, to end the year with a financial surplus. Our efforts are directed towards pledging men who can afford the extra expense of a fraternity, for the man who is continually in financial straits is a burden to the Chapter, and there are few exceptions to this rule. Occasionally a student who is married, or who lives with his family in town is pledged, but these men must be far above average to pass a Chapter vote, as we want men who can live in the house and take a full part in Chapter work and support of the fraternity. This does not mean that there is any discrimination against the poorer man but it does mean that if his finances are limited that he has a definite plan and is therefore the kind of man who knows how to meet his obligations on time.

Social life is kept down to a minimum, the Chapter rarely having more than two dances a year, and plans for these dances are directed towards the utmost economy. We do not need frills in medical school.

Alumni contacts are maintained through the invitation of all local alumni to every Chapter event, initiations, banquets, and other social gatherings. At least two alumni letters are sent out by the Chapter each year, and contact thus maintained with distant members. Alumni take an active interest in Chapter doings and Zeta progress.

Scholarship is maintained by careful guidance of the freshmen through their first year. Weekly instructive sessions are held in the Chapter house for the pledges, they are guided in their studies, and their progress checked by occasional quizzes. An active scholarship committee maintains a record of the grades of the members, and there is a report in Chapter meeting when grades are given out, so that each may know the progress of his fellow Brother. This stimulates a spirit of rivalry, and the man who is too lazy to secure good grades is at the mercy of the gibes of the more industrious.

Chapter management is a serious business, requires considerable energy, enterprise and courage. It should not be taken lightly.

SHERWOOD B. WINSLOW,
President of Zeta Chapter.

IOTA again heads the honor roll of chapters who have distinguished themselves by paying their Grand Chapter dues in advance of the date specified in the LAWS. Iota has gone one step further and has paid the total amount due for the current college year rather than merely the first half.

The secret of Iota's ability to pay promptly is in a well-thought out budget which anticipates future fixed charges, thereby being able to meet all bills when due and incidentally avoiding the bugaboo of special assessments.

The second chapter on the roll of honor is Chi Zeta. This chapter has had unusually hard sledding because of the drought which has existed in the grain belt for the past two years. Most of the members of the Chapter are from families directly or indirectly suffering as a result of this unprecedented catastrophe. But in spite of all this they have come through nobly and have paid their dues for the current half year one month in advance of the time specified in the LAWS.

Alpha Gamma is the third chapter on the Honor Roll and from past experience we know that the only reason that this chapter does not head the list is that they did not think of it soon enough. Alpha Gamma also has a well-thought out budget and their financial program is completed months in advance.

The Officers of the Grand Chapter wish to take this opportunity to thank the above chapters for this fine spirit of cooperation and trust that other chapters will accept the suggestion of a well-thought out budget which anticipates future financial requirements.

ADDITIONAL subjects for fireside talks by alumni have been suggested by Walter M. Simpson, Grand Councilor at Large for our fraternity. These are:

1. Safe investments for physicians.
2. The Doctor and the Law.
3. Medical testimony in court.
4. Readings from current medical literature.
5. The handling of industrial cases under the State Compensation Act.
6. Legitimate and illegitimate industrial medical claims.
7. The absolute necessity for a contract as the basis for partnership or an assistantship.
8. The importance of a good office assistant "with a full practice, the highest type of assistant obtainable will be the cheapest in the long run."

The group of Temple University medical students which were organized by A K K alumni shortly after A I of was installed as BO of A K K on May 7, 1932.

Walter M. Simpson, Z, of Dayton, Ohio, gave a paper before the Central Clinical Society for Clinical Research in Cleveland on November 4, "Influence of Radiotherm Pyrotherapy on Chloride Metabolism".

HISTORY is always in the making. The events of today comprise their share and importance in the run of records as the years roll on. There should be a compulsory rule that calls for the purchase of a substantially bound book for the purpose of keeping a "log" of events as they occur. In this should be kept side items that do not belong in the routine minute records of a chapter. Spell names and give initials correctly.

For this purpose there should be a card index of every member—pledge, active-alumni, honorary—giving correct initial, name, titles, honors, civic and professional activities, allowing sufficient space for additional items. When change of address or decease occurs this information should be promptly recorded.

In the record book there should be a part provided for registration of every visiting frater-alumnus, etc., giving date, address and chapter affiliation. This becomes immensely valuable as the years go on. Also, a scrap book for recording clippings of events, photographs, chapter and fraternity items, properly identified as to origin, date, etc.

This book should also contain full identification marks as to purpose, ownership, etc. In case of loss, straying or mislaid, then to be returned to local chapter, or, to the Grand Officers.

A. C. Morgan.

Just recently there was suggested to us a plan so good and valuable and so full of interest to all concerned that we are telling about it and urging as much as we know how, that it be put into effect in all chapters. To the chapters it will constitute an invaluable asset in rushing, a most fascinating review for visiting alumni, a valuable source of reference for information involving personalities, as for biographies—in short, well, here 'tis, see for yourself!

The incidents of today, so much taken as a matter of passing interest, are the historical landmarks of tomorrow. Preserve them with an eye to factual accuracy—names, dates, places, occasions, etc. The need for, and value of such a record is so obvious that it really should be compulsory that every chapter provide themselves with an adequately and substantially bound book into which could be transcribed those items, the recording of which lies outside of the province of the routine minute records. Complete identification of individuals should be made as to name, initials, full information as to item: achievement, activity, honors and so forth.

Such a log-book would be properly photographs, etc., properly identified as to date and origin.

AUDITORIUM DEDICATED

This beautiful auditorium was dedicated on the Northwestern Professional Campus in Chicago on October 17, 1932. Conforming in architecture to the plans of the group, it serves as a general place of meeting for all of the activities to be gathered upon this campus from all of the professional schools of Northwestern University.

ZETA CHAPTER has rearranged finances for the remainder of the year which will benefit all concerned. As was stated in the last issue of the JOURNAL, for several years Zeta has imposed a $6.00 tax upon each active member's house bill to cover the house mortgage and building fund obligation. This year the house manager has shown unusual interest and skill in his job and has driven many very good bargains with the town merchants. As a result his commissary expenses are well below the budget item. This surplus is being applied to the monthly tax of those who live and eat in the house. The few who live and eat out still pay the regular tax.

STUDENT'S DAY

SOONER or later, men who become more than technicians in medicine must master the art. This mastery comes with the years but not to all. Only to those who have developed their personalities to their full capacity and who have gained a familiarity with the results of the intellectual activity of the past and present and with its bearing upon our welfare, conduct, and social lives. In other words, the masters of our art are those skilled technicians who have become Gentlemen of Culture.

So in spite of the fact that medical students have too much to do, I would still urge them to give some time daily to the acquiring of culture. I would insist on thirty minutes per day spent with the books of the Osler Bedside Series. In addition, somehow, some time they should learn in their study of anatomy not only the many useful and useless facts but above all they should know the story of the lives and works of Mondius, Vesalius, Fallopius, Eustachius, Sylvius and many others; in physiology they should know Harvey, Priestly, Stephen Hales, Starling, Regner de Graf, Beaumont, and so on down to Cannon; in bacteriology, they should be able to tell the story of Spallanzani, Pasteur, Koch, Behring, Richet, Reed, and Ross; in medicine Hippocrates, Galen, Paracelsus, Addison, Brown, Cullen, Meade, Radcliffe, Black, Herberden, Haller, Rush, and Drake.

The lives, deeds, and contributions of these men should make up much of the conversation around the chapter house, halls, and wherever Phi Rhos meet in a social way. To the degree to which this is accomplished will Phi Rho Sigma stand in the minds of its members as an indispensable thing.

In doing the day's studying every effort should be made to conserve your time and energy by the development of a systematic technique. The first thing in getting down to the job is the physical preparation. May we call your attention again to that most comprehensive discussion of this phase of the problem by Professor Carlos I. Reed, M.D., of the University of Illinois in Volume XXVI of this journal. When these things have been attended to and all of the materials that you are going to use are laid out so that there will be no interruption of your thoughts, relax completely for just a few minutes. Then WORK. Systematic work is the keynote to success both in student days and afterwards in practice.

Jonathan Forman, M.D.
